Policy

Being ethical means more than simply identifying moral issues that exist in life situations. People can only claim to be ethical when they follow the identification of these moral issues with ethical actions and behaviour; which are those they deem to be the right course of action in a situation and are based on a considered framework that is a reflection of their personal beliefs.

Inclusive Sport SA (ISSA) is committed to ethical decision making not only to become literate about ethics in terms of understanding the logic, reasoning and psychology behind the choices we make on various matters, but also understand how to arrive at ethical decisions, and then practice voicing and enacting those choices.

Responsibilities

It is the responsibility of the Board to review this policy and monitor its implementation.

It is the responsibility of the Chief Executive Officer to ensure that this policy is effectively implemented across the organisation.

Ethical Decision Making Framework

The Ethical Decision Making Framework (page 2) is a simple, practical framework that Inclusive Sport SA will use as a guide when making decisions about ethical dilemmas.

It was developed by former Play by the Rules manager Dr Paul Oliver (Oliver and Thompson Consultancy) and has been used by a number of agencies, including the National Integrity of Sport Unit, and sporting bodies across the country to help guide them in ethical decision making.
